Will Press Dyer Defies the Officers of Magoffin County.

Knowing that if captured he will probably be lynched, fully armed and prepared to sell his liberty as dearly as possible, Will Press Dyer is hiding in the mountains near Salyersville. Meanwhile a posse of determined men is searching every cliff and valley, inquiring at every house and using all possible efforts to capture him alive.

Dyer has never worked for a living. He has lived in the mountain fastness for years, and his food has always been handed out at any place where he demanded it, as the people fear him. He is only about 22 years of age, has but one eye, and is nearsighted at that. More than one attempted murder is charged to his account, and at least one killing, apparently without provocation, has aroused the people of Magoffin county so much that it will fare hard with the young desperado when he is captured, and this he well knows. His latest exploit was the killing of Cleveland Arnett, on Wednesday last, as published in THE NEWS last week. Going to Arnett's home, six miles from Salyersville, on the Middle Fork of the Licking river, he seemed for a while to be on very friendly terms with all the family. After eating dinner with the Arnetts he persuaded Cleveland Arnett to accompany him out of doors. After going a short distance from the house he shot Arnett in the back, being so near that his victim's coat was set on fire by the flash. After the ville for safekeeping. The elder Dyer is a widower. Both his sons and himself have been a source of terror in the Middle Fork in Magoffin county. None of the three drink to excess, Will scarcely ever touching liquor. He has often declared to friends that he will never be taken alive for any of his crimes. For the past year, in order to avoid surprise by officers he has slept in the hills. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Will Run Through Breathitt.

The directors, the promoter, Gwynne Dennis, of New York, and the Engineer, J. W. Jones, of Gallipolis, Ohio, of the Ohio & Licking Valley Railway Company, incorporated in Cincinnati a short time ago, were in session in that city Saturday, making preliminary preparations for the construction, which the engineer says will commence in 60 days.

The projected lines which has been surveyed, will, Mr. Jones says, be built from Hillsboro, Fleming county, Ky., or a near-by point on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, to Cannel City, Morgan county, a distance of 72 miles, and a branch line will be built from Cannel City to Jackson, crossing the creek in Letcher county. Men interested in the road say they have ample funds guaranteed to put the road into early operation.

CHAPTER XV.
"Methought I met a damsel fair,
And I was woe in her eyes;
Her head and arms were bare;
I heard her bursting sighs,
"I stopped and looked her in the face.
"Twas then she sweetly smiled,
Her features shone with mortal grace
Far more than Nature's child.
"With diffident and downcast eye,
In modest tones she spoke.
She wiped a tear and gave a sigh
And then her silence broke."

SO sang Mrs. Tanberry at the piano, relieving the melancholy which possessed her, but Nelson, passing in the hall to listen and, exceedingly curious concerning the promised utterance of the damsel fair, was to suffer disappointment, as the ballad was broken off abruptly and the songstress closed the piano with a monstrous clatter. Little doubt may be entertained that the noise was designed to disturb Mr. Carewe, who sat upon the veranda consulting a strong cigar, and less that the intended insult was accomplished. For an expression of a vindictive nature was precipitated in that quarter so simultaneously that the bang of the piano lid and the curse were even as the report of a musket and the immediate cry of the wounded.

Mrs. Tanberry at once debouched upon the piazza, showing a vast, clouded countenance. "And I hope to heaven you already had a headache!" she exclaimed.
"The courtesy of your wish, madam," Carewe replied, with an angry flash of his eye, "is only equaled by the kindness of heaven in answering it. I have, in fact, a headache. I always have nowadays."

"That's good news," returned the lady heartily.

"I thank you," retorted her host.

"Perhaps if you treated your daughter with even a decent Indian's kind of politeness you'd enjoy better health."

"Ah! And in what failure to perform my duty toward her have I incurred your displeasure?"

"Where is she now?" exclaimed the other excitedly. "Where is she now?"

"I cannot say."

"Yes, you can, Robert Carewe!" Mrs. Tanberry retorted, with a wrathful gesture. "You know well enough she's in her own room, and so do I, for I tried to get in to comfort her when I heard her crying. She's in there with the door bolted, where you drove her!"

"I drove her!" he sneered.

"Yes; you did, and I heard you. Do you think I couldn't hear you raging and storming at her like a crazy man? Why can't you be a good father to her?"

"Perhaps you might begin by asking her to be a good daughter to me."

"What has she done?"

"The night before I went away she ran to a fire and behaved there like a common street hoiden. The ladies of the Carewe family have not formerly acquired a notoriety of that kind."

"Bah!" said Mrs. Tanberry.

"The next morning, when I taxed her with it, she dutifully defied and insulted me."

"I can imagine the delicacy with which you 'taxed' her. What has that to do with your devilish tantrums of this afternoon, Robert Carewe?"

"I am obliged to you for the expression," he returned. "When I came home this afternoon I found her reading that thing." He pointed to many very small fragments of Mr. Cummings' newspaper, which were scattered about the lawn near the veranda.

"Well?"

"Do you know what that article was, madam, do you know what it was?"

Although breathing heavily, Mr. Carewe had compelled himself to a certain outward calmness, but now, in the uncontrollable agitation of his anger, he sprang to his feet and struck one of the wooden pillars of the porch a shocking blow with the bare knuckles of his clenched hand. "Do you know what it was?" It was a eulogy of that Vanrevel! It pretended to be an account of the enrollment of his infernal company, but it was nothing more than a glorification of that nigger loving hound! His company—a lot of sneaks, who'll run like sheep from the first greaser—elected him captain yesterday, and today he received an appointment as major! It reads the blood in my veins to think of it—that black dog major! Heavens, am I never to hear the last of him? Cummings wrote it, the fool, the lying, fawning, slobbering fool. He ought to be shot for it! Neither he nor his paper ever enters my doors again! And I took the dirty sheet from her hands and tore it to pieces!"

"Yes," interposed Mrs. Tanberry, "it looks as if you had done it with your teeth."

"—and stamped it into the ground!"

"Oh, I heard you," she said.

Carewe came close to her and gave her a long look from such bitter eyes that her own fell before them. "If you've been treacherous to me, Jane Tanberry," he said, "then God punish you! If they've met—my daughter and that man—while I was away, it is on your head."

He turned and walked to the door, while the indomitable Mrs. Tanberry, alerted for once, sank into the chair he had vacated. Before he disappeared within the house he paused.

"If Mr. Vanrevel has met my daughter," he said in a thick voice, stretching out both hands in a strange, menacing gesture toward the town that lay darkling in the growing dusk, "if he has addressed one word to her or so much as allowed his eyes to rest on her overlong, let him take care of himself!"

"Oh, Robert, Robert!" Mrs. Tanberry cried in a frightened whisper to herself. "All the fun and brightness went out of the world when you came home!"

But there were other reasons than the return of Robert Carewe why Rouen had lost the joy and mirth that belonged to it. Nay, the merry town had changed beyond all credence. It was hushed like a sickroom and dolorously murmurous with forebodings of farewell and sorrow.

For all the very flower of Rouen's youth had promised to follow Tom Vanrevel on the long and arduous journey to Mexico, to march burning miles under the tropical sun, to face strange fevers and the guns of Santa Anna.

Few were the houses of the more pretentious sort that did not mourn in prospect the going of son or brother or close friend. Mothers already wept not in secret, fathers talked with husky bravado, and every one was very kind to those who were to go, speaking to them gently and bringing them little foolish presents. Nor could the hearts of girls now longer mask as blocks of ice to the prospective conquistadores. Eugene Madrilion's young brother, Jean, after a two years' Beatrice and Benedict wooing of Trixie Chenoweth, that notable spinster, announced his engagement upon the day after his enlistment and recounted to all who would listen how his tergiversant fell upon his neck in tears when she heard of the news. "And now she cries about me all the time," finished the frank Jean blithely.

But there was little spirit for the old merriments. Fanchon, Virginia and five or six others spent their afternoons mournfully, and yet proudly, sewing and cutting large pieces of colored silk, fashioning a great flag for their sweethearts and brothers to bear southward and plant where stood the palace of the Montezumas.

That was sad work for Fanchon, though it was not for her brother's sake that she wept, since, as every one knew, Jefferson was already so full of malaria and quinine that the fevers of the south and Mexico must find him invulnerable, and even his mother believed he would only thrive and grow hearty on his soldiering. But about Cratley Fanchon had a presentiment more vivid than any born of the natural fears for his safety. It came to her again and again, reappearing in her dreams. She shivered and started often as she worked on the flag, bent her fair head low over the gay silks, while the others glanced at her sympathetically. And when the flag was completed save for sewing the stars upon the blue ground she took it away from the others and insisted upon finishing the work herself.

It was at this juncture, when the weeping of women was plentiful, when old men pulled long faces and the very urchins of the street observed periods of gravity and even silence, that a notion entered the head of Mrs. Tanberry—young Jane Tanberry—to the effect that such things were all wrong. She declared energetically that this was no decent fashion of farewell; that after the soldiers went away there would be time enough to enact the girls they had left behind them, and that until then the town should be made enlivening. So she went about preaching a revival of cheerfulness.

Nor was her vigor spent in vain. It was decided that a ball should be given to the volunteers of Rouen two nights before their departure for the state rendezvous, and it should be made the noblest festival in Rouen's history. The subscribers took their oath to it.

Miss Betty laid out her prettiest dress that evening, and Mrs. Tanberry came in and worshipped it as it rested, like foam of lavender and white and gray, upon the bed, beside the snowy gloves with their tiny, stiff lace gauntlets, while two small white sandal slippers, with jeweled buckles where the straps crossed each other, were being fastened upon Miss Betty's silken feet by the vain and glowing Mamie.

Mrs. Tanberry came in and worshipped it.

"It's a wicked cruelty, princess!" exclaimed Mrs. Tanberry. "We want to cheer the poor fellows and help them to be gay, and here do you deliberately plan to make them sick at the thought of leaving the place that holds you! Or have you discovered that there's one poor vagabond of the band getting off without having his heart broken, and made up your mind to do it for him tonight?"

"Is father to go with us?" asked Betty. It was through Mrs. Tanberry that she now derived all information concerning Mr. Carewe, as he had not directly addressed her since the afternoon when he discovered her reading the Journal's extra.

"No; we are to meet him there. He seems rather pleasant than usual this evening," remarked Mrs. Tanberry hopefully as she retired.

"Don't we mus' git ready to share big trouble tomorrow?" commented the kneeling Mamie, with a giggle.

Alas, poor adoring servitress, she received a share unto herself that very evening, for her young mistress, usually as amiable as a fair summer sky, fidgeted, grumbled, found nothing well done and was never two minutes in the same mind. After donning the selected dress, she declared it a fright, tried two others, abused each roundly, dismissed her almost weeping hand-maiden abruptly and again put on the first. Sitting down to the mirror, she spent a full hour over the arrangement of her hair.

When Mrs. Tanberry came in to tell her that Nelson was at the block with the carriage Miss Betty did not turn, and the elder lady stopped on the threshold and gave a quick, asthmatic gasp of delight.

"Oh," said Mrs. Tanberry, "you make me want to be a man! I'd pick you up and run to the north pole, where no one could ever follow. And I can tell you that it hurts not to throw my arms round you and kiss you, but you're so exquisite I don't want to touch you!"

"Dance wid de han'somdest," screamed Mamie, pursuing uproariously to see the last of her as she jumped into the carriage, "how to de whitriest an' kisse de one you love de best!"

"That will be you!" said Miss Betty to Mrs. Tanberry and kissed the good lady again.

killing he took Arnett's rifle and what money he had, about $3.20, and then disappeared. It is for this crime that the posse is anxious to capture him.

Some time ago, while living in Breathitt county, Dyer insulted Mrs. Martin Spencer. Spencer ordered him off the premises, and Dyer's reply was a shot, which penetrated his body, nearly killing him.

Later Dyer met Logan Arnett at Hendricks postoffice. Logan Arnett hauls merchandise from Paintsville, employing a four-mule team. For some trifling matter Dyer became incensed at Arnett and at the point of a revolver forced him to give up his gun and get out of the wagon. Then he shot and killed two of the mules. Before he could get the others, Arnett's brother came up and shot, wounding Dyer slightly. Ever since then he has been after the entire Arnett family, intending to kill them.

Last Thursday, the day after he killed Arnett, officers arrested Everett Dyer, the murderer's father, and Frank Dyer, a brother, Judge Patrick having heard they would assist him in every way possible to escape arrest. Three Krag-Jorgensen rifles and several revolvers were found concealed in their house. Both prisoners said they were sick and unable to walk to jail, so the arresting officers let them use their horses. After going a short distance they whipped up the animals and attempted to escape, but a shot from a rifle brought Frank to the ground, the bullet having grazed his skull. Both were placed in jail at Salyers-

Squire G. P. Back was appointed by the Fiscal Court last week to put in such supports as might be necessary to keep the Hunting Creek bridge from washing out. The foundation for the bridge was put on sand, which we are told by high authority, is not a good thing to build upon.

The Fiscal Court, at its session last week, made settlement with the Treasurer and transacted various other business of importance to the county, but as Ed Callahan, former Sheriff, did not appear to settle his accounts with the county for the year 1905, the Court adjourned till May 10th for that purpose.

C. B. Thompson and family, who moved a short time ago to Somerset, have returned, which is another illustration of our theory that those who have once breathed our pure mountain air and drank from our limpid springs are never satisfied to live anywhere else. Almost all of them, sooner or later, come back.

Gov. Folk, of Missouri, has determined to prosecute the leaders and members of the mob which lynched the three negroes at Springfield, Mo., last Saturday night. No good explanation has been given for the act and it is generally believed that the men lynched were not the perpetrators of the crimes of which they were accused.

THE FUTURE OF JACKSON

Dr. W. G. Dailey Writes of an Institution Badly Needed.

MILLSBURG, KY., Apr. 15, 06.

BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS.

My Dear Editor:—Five years ago today I left Jackson and among the many changes and new enterprises that have taken place in Jackson since I left I know of none that has done more good toward the upbuilding of Jackson and Breathitt county than THE BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS. Many of my old friends have gone to their reward since that time who were friends indeed; not only in Breathitt county but in the counties adjoining, more especially my old home county, Owsley, where God in his infinite wisdom gave me light.

Your numerous correspondents keep me pretty well posted about the people generally in that part of Eastern Kentucky, of whom I am as proud today and hold in as high esteem as any people on earth. It often amuses me when I read in some of the metropolitan dailies of some tragedy or some miraculous escape of some capitalist or prospector with their lives in some of your mountain counties by some writer who knows no more of the conditions in Eastern Kentucky than he does of the conditions that actually exist in the wilds of Africa.

On my last visit to Jackson I could have seen with half an eye the prosperity going on in the building line and with your schools and churches I predict that in the near future Jackson will be the Athens of the mountains.

Now, with the extension of the L. & E. railroad, if the citizens of Jackson would build a hospital it would be to your town and the surrounding country what the hospitals in Lexington are to that city and the adjoining counties. Start the enterprise and you will have as fine physicians and surgeons as any hospital has, and it will increase the population and bring other enterprises, and combined with your schools, churches and railroads would teach Christianity, morality etc., and put feuds and politics in the background.

With kindest regards to you and my old friends, I beg to remain sincerely yours,

W. G. DAILEY, M. D.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Joe Barnett, son of Jane Barnett, died at his home on Miller Branch last Monday of fever.

Talton Combs, an old and respected citizen, who lived for many years on Turkey creek, died at the home of his son, Syra Combs, in Lee county last Monday. His remains were taken to the family burying ground near Roger Callahan's.

Mrs. Meriam Roberts, wife of Dr. A. J. Roberts, died at her home at Catosa, I. T., of heart trouble, on April 2nd and was buried at Springtown, I. T., on the 4th. She was the daughter of John Fugate (Prewitt), who died several years ago on Troublesome Creek. Her last request was that her funeral should be conducted at her father's grave on the 2nd Saturday and Sunday in June by Revs. J. H. Hudson, John Henry Combs and R. B. Landrum. This request will be complied with and everybody is invited.

John B. Mullens, while superintending the cutting of timber for C. Cramer & Co., an Indiana firm, in Arkansas, was killed by a limb falling on him. His remains were brought here and buried Tuesday in the Little Grave Yard, just below town, by the Masons and Odd Fellows of the Jackson and Booneville lodges. He formerly lived in this county, where he was engaged in the lumber business for several years and then went to Owsley county and from there to Arkansas. Among those from Booneville and Owsley county who attended his burial were the following:

C. W. Hogg, H. C. Combs, Rev. W. A. E. Campbell, S. T. Hogg, W. A. Durbin, A. A. Brandenburg, Frank Brandenburg, Arch Brandenburg, John Rose, Richard Combs, H. C. Trendway, Isaac Wilder, Harvey Brandenburg, James Becknell, Wayne Shepherd and Zach Wilson.

Stay of Mandate Granted.

The Supreme Court at Washington, Tuesday, granted a stay of mandate for thirty days in the case of Caleb Powers, while his attorneys prepare petitions for a rehearing. This is an advantage for Powers' attorneys as it gives them the time they desire to see if there is any chance to pass the bill. The Supreme Court in a recent decision held that it had no jurisdiction in the Powers case, Powers having asked that his case be taken from the court in Scott county and turn over to a Federal court for trial. The Langley bill contains provisions giving the Supreme Court power to transfer under conditions such as those which surround the Powers case. If this bill passes Powers will probably be the first to benefit by it.

Murder Charged.

Malcolm H. Holiday, the young deputy collector, of Hazard, Perry county, who was five times wounded by pistol shots in a hand-to-hand battle with a notorious band of moonshiners, and his brother, Tolbert Holiday, who was with him at the time of the fight with the moonshiners, when Pharo Sloan and his brother were killed, have been indicted in the Perry county Circuit Court, charged with murder. By the efforts of the attorneys of the two Holidays their case was transferred to the Federal Court, whereupon they went to Covington and surrendered. Since the killing the two Holidays have been away from Perry county and have avoided arrest, claiming they feared to go back lest they be killed by members of the organized band of moonshiners.

Know He Was Safe.

"Aunt Louisa," as the late Mrs. Louisa Eldridge was lovingly called, was well known as an actress, but she was even better known as the organizer of the annual Christmas festival for stage children at Pastor's theater in New York, according to the Chicago Tribune.

"In presenting their Christmas gifts to the stage children," said an actress, "Aunt Louisa made the jolliest little speeches. I well remember what she said to me when I was juvenile in presenting me with a crutch, for I had sprained my ankle badly in a snow scene.

"She said she hoped I would incommode no one with my crutch, as her cousin, a veteran colonel, sometimes incommode people with his wooden leg.

"Her cousin, she said, was once dining with a man whose floors were of highly polished and costly inlaid woods.

"The host got nervous as he saw the colonel clumping and clattering about on his expensive floors. He was afraid they would be scratched up.

"Hadn't you better come over here on the rug, colonel?" he said. "You might slip out there, you know."

"But the colonel, with a loud laugh, struck the floor firmly with his wooden leg.

"No fear of that," said he. "There's a nail in the end, you know."

The Superintendent Was Willing.

Every one in northern New Hampshire remembers Superintendent Dodge, the former division superintendent of the White Mountain branch of the Boston and Maine railroad, and his ready wit. In one of the section gangs was an employee who was rather an eccentric character and was ambitious to become an engineer, but possessed no qualifications for the job. One day his companions urged him to write to the superintendent for a chance to "run" on the road, and in due time came this answer from Mr. Dodge, "I have no objection to your running on the road if you will be careful to keep out of the way of the trains."—Boston Herald.

A Young Mother at 70.

"My mother has suddenly been made young at 70. Twenty years of intense suffering from dyspepsia had entirely disabled her, until six months ago, when she began taking Electric Bitters which have completely cured her and restored the strength and activity she had in the prime of life," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick, of Danforth, Maine. Greatest restorative medicine on the globe. Sets stomach, liver and kidneys right, purifies the blood, and cures malaria, biliousness and weakness. Wonderful nerve tonic. Price 50¢. Guaranteed by Jackson Drug Co.

HUNTING A GHOST.

There is a haunted house at Vincennes, where the usual mysterious noises of ghostly visitants are heard. This particular building is one of those of the French department of war. The victims of the ghost are a worthy couple named Galichet, the good man being one of the keepers of the wood. A week ago he and his wife were awakened by loud rappings on the partition wall, but no creature in mortal guise could he discover. The phenomenon has been repeated each night since. It always occurs at 4 o'clock. Friends and neighbors have watched with Galichet, but the spirit rapper is still as intangible as ever. The whole neighborhood undertakes ghost hunts on an evening now. Even the military authorities are concerned to pierce the mystery and have ordered an inquiry. A ghost court martial would be new in military history.

Hyena Hunting on Shipboard.

An exciting hyena hunt was among the unadvertised attractions of a voyage between Tunis and Marseilles on board the steamer Djurjura. A pair of hyenas had been taken on board, but the cage, a wooden one, was not strong enough, and during the night the female escaped. As efforts to get her back to the cage only drove the brute to show her teeth, she was shot by a gendarme in charge of some military prisoners. Next day the male got out, but after a hue and cry he was got back into the cage. He began, however, to attack the timber bars with his teeth in a manner so savage that he, too, was shot as a precaution. The passengers on the steamer had to be kept below during these scenes.—London Globe.

To remove a tight fitting screw cover to a can rub a little chalk on the top and wrap a piece of sandpaper around the cover with the sand side next the can. The top can then be removed without trouble.

The Richest Man in the World.

The richest man in the world can not have his kidneys replaced nor live without them, so it is important not to neglect these organs. If Foley's Kidney Cure is taken at the first sign of danger the symptoms will disappear and your health will be restored, as it strengthens and builds up these organs as nothing else will. Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: "I have used Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease, which certainly would have cost me my life." Jackson Drug Co.

Boy's Composition on a Horse.

A father going into his stable one day last week found his little son astride one of the horses with a slate and pencil in his hand. "Why, Harry," he exclaimed, "what are you doing?" "Writing a composition," was the reply. "Well, why don't you write it in the house?" asked the father. "Because," answered the little fellow, "the teacher told me to write a composition on a horse."

He Was Prepared.

Two men had had an argument on the street, which had waxed so warm that it ended with blows. They were arrested and taken to court.

A lawyer was examining an eyewitness of the affair and asked, "You say you saw Mr. B. strike Mr. D. first?"

"Yes, sir."

"How far away were you at the time?"

"Seventeen feet five inches and a half."

"Indeed? And could you tell the court how you are so sure of the exact distance?"

"Well," was the reply, "I thought some fool lawyer would ask me that question, so I took a tape and measured it."—Boston Herald.

The Original.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs or colds. Jackson Drug Company.

It Foretells Weather.

Do you wish to gain a reputation as a weather prophet? Watch the clouds, says an old sailor, or, rather, one cloud. Pick out the smallest cloud you can see and keep your eye on it. If it diminishes and disappears it shows a state of the air that is almost sure to be followed by fair weather. But if it increases in size falling weather will not be far off.

The reason is this: When the air is becoming charged with electricity you will see every cloud attracting all less ones toward it, till it gathers into a shower. And, on the contrary, when the fluid is passing off or diffusing itself even a large cloud will be seen breaking to pieces and dissolving.

Nothing will relieve indigestion that is not a thorough digestant. Kodol Dyspepsia cure digests what you eat and allows the stomach to rest—recooperate—grow strong again. A few doses of Kodol after meals will soon restore the stomach and digestive organs to a full performance of their functions naturally. Sold by Jackson Drug Company.

"Grandma," said little Flossie, "can I have your store teeth to play with?"

"Of course not, dear," replied the old lady. "You must be reasonable in your wants."

"But, grandma," protested Flossie, "it's your teeth that are not reasonable. Every time I want anything you want me to want something else."

Don't drug the stomach to cure a cough. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the mucus, draws the inflammation out of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, heals, soothes and cures. The Plot That Failed

And the Victim of It

A COUPLE of years ago a governor of one of the southern states went to Palm Beach, Fla., for a short holiday. He registered at one of the magnificent hotels and was assigned to a luxurious suite of rooms. He was comfortably installed when a friend came in to call on him.

"This is a wonderful apartment they have given you," said the visitor.

"Why, yes," replied the governor. "I've never enjoyed such luxury in my life. Never saw such a place!" They just showed me to these rooms, but I've been wondering if they realized that I was a poor man. What do you suppose they'll charge me?"

"Well, governor," answered the other, "I happen to know about that. The last man, a railroad president from New York, paid $75 a day for these very rooms."

"Scissors to grind!" cried the unfortunate politician. "I've only got $50. I'll have to leave at once. But look here, Jim, I don't want to confess. I can't pay for at least one day, so you go down to the station and telegraph me to come home at once. I will meet you at the station within an hour."

When the governor arrived at the station he found the friend waiting, as he had arranged.

"You got my telegram all right?" inquired the acquaintance.

"Got it!" said the governor in a despairing voice. "I should say so. I believe I am the luckiest man alive. Why, when I went to ask for my bill what do you suppose the clerk said? He told me there was no bill—said they would be honored if I stayed a year!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Danger From the Plague.

It prevents pneumonia, cures la grippe, gives wonderful relief to asthma and hay fever, and makes weak lungs strong enough to ward off consumption, coughs and colds. 50¢ and $1.00. Guaranteed by Jackson Drug Co. Trial bottle free."

Cured Hemorrhage of the Lungs

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar and my lungs are now sound as a bell. I recommend it in advance stages of lung trouble." Foley's Honey and Tar stops a cough and heals the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes. Jackson Drug Company.
